“I take pride in guiding clients out of difficult legal disputes or unfamiliar business challenges. Our clients deserve and expect skilled attorneys who align their goals with the best possible outcome, in or out of court.”

Eric Mills is an adept litigator who focuses on helping companies and individuals in the cannabis industry and other consumer product and services industries as they face litigation, regulatory regimes, and investigations. He represents national, regional, and local businesses and individuals from all backgrounds in federal and state court and in administrative proceedings before government regulatory bodies, including the Oregon Liquor Control Commission.

Eric brings an attentive, thoughtful, and thorough approach to solving his clients’ problems and achieving favorable resolutions both in and out of court. He excels at mastering complex facts and the detailed workings of his clients’ businesses, industries, and lives and enjoys unraveling complicated problems.

Eric routinely handles contract disputes, tort claims, corporate governance disputes, and other cases. His experience extends to helping clients in a wide array of industries, including financial services, telecommunications, retail, automotive, transportation, software, real estate, shipping, energy, and many others. He is also closely familiar with issues related to antitrust and competition law, the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, and other complex areas of federal and state law and regulation.

Prior to joining Miller Nash, Eric practiced in the Washington, DC, office of a global law firm, where he specialized in antitrust and competition law, civil litigation, and government and internal investigations. During law school, Eric completed a judicial externship with the Honorable Michael H. Simon of the United States District Court for the District of Oregon. Before attending law school, he interned at The White House and worked as the field director for an Oregon state senate campaign and a legal assistant at a small law firm.

Representative Experience

Antitrust

- Successfully challenged the National Women's Soccer League's minimum age rule in U.S. District Court as an illegal boycott in violation of federal antitrust law on behalf of 15-year-old professional soccer player Olivia Moultrie. Trial team obtained a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction in this landmark case, prohibiting the NWSL and its teams from boycotting Moultrie due to her age. Achievements also included securing favorable rulings on significant questions arising out of federal antitrust and labor law, including that the NWSL and its teams did not constitute a "single entity" for antitrust purposes and that Moultrie's claim was not precluded by federal labor statutes and did not interfere with ongoing collective bargaining between the NWSL and the NWSL Players Association. Case culminated in the negotiation of a settlement ensuring Moultrie's right to continue playing in the NWSL, subject to the provisions of any final collective bargaining agreement.
