Our nationally recognized construction team provides comprehensive legal support and tailored client service to construction clients across the Pacific Northwest.

We represent general contractors, subcontractors, design professionals, and public and private owners and developers. From contract negotiations to claims litigation, our team has the experience and know-how to achieve our clients' goals, regardless of project size. Our professionals stay current on innovative project design and delivery methods, best practices in contract documentation, and pivotal case law and legislation.

When litigation is unavoidable, we assist clients in complex matters involving construction defects, liens, bid protests, payment claims, and delays. Our attorneys are also well versed in insurance recovery disputes and have a substantial track record of resolving insurance claims involving property damage, construction defect, bodily injury, and products liability.

Our highly skilled transactional team provides custom contract drafting and negotiation support for public and private clients. In addition, the team assists clients in managing risk by advising on contract administration, permitting and regulatory compliance, project delivery, and preparation of RFPs and ITBs.

Beyond our traditional construction services, we ensure that our clients benefit from the expansive legal services offered within the firm, such as advice related to employment, tax, or real estate matters. Given the breadth of these services, clients rely on our team of industry-focused attorneys to fulfill the full spectrum of their legal needs throughout the lifecycle of their projects.
