"I am personally invested in getting to know our clients and their operations and believe that an in-depth understanding of their business and objectives is essential. My goal is to be a part of my client's team. I partner with clients to help them make informed and strategic decisions over the course of their construction project or real estate acquisition—helping to see each project succeed."

Tara O'Hanlon counsels clients over the life of their construction or real estate acquisition projects, from drafting and negotiating comprehensive and practical contracts to finding creative solutions for early and efficient resolution of disputes. If litigation cannot be avoided, Tara has an extensive and successful track record trying and arbitrating cases and will see a matter through to a final resolution.

Tara represents all segments of the design and construction industry, including owners, general contractors, subcontractors, suppliers, and design professionals and helps them build hospitals, infrastructure and road projects, casinos, hotels, office buildings, condominiums, and other commercial and residential projects. She negotiates public and private design and construction contracts, including projects with alternative delivery methods, design-build, and integrated project delivery (IPD). Tara advises clients on how to avoid claims and disputes and, if needed, helps them navigate arbitrating or litigating payment, delay, defect, and warranty claims.

Tara represents municipal agencies and property owners in their eminent domain/condemnation acquisitions. Tara has successfully tried numerous multimillion-dollar cases, including obtaining successful verdicts in several of Washington's largest eminent domain decisions. Tara is regularly asked to present and publishes on eminent domain law and her successful cases.

Trials & Arbitration

- Obtained a unanimous jury verdict matching our client's valuation evidence exactly in a multi-week, 30-party, 100 percent virtual condemnation trial. The local transit authority client needed to acquire the right to amend restrictive covenants to allow it to construct and operate its light rail project and the total valuation dispute was more than $5.5 million in just compensation.
- Successfully tried one of the first social-distanced pandemic jury trials in Washington over the condemnation of several permanent and temporary rights abutting the building frontage of one of the region's largest airlines to allow the local transit authority to construct and operate its light rail project. The parties were over hundreds of thousands of dollars apart and the jury returned a verdict in our client's favor.
- Successfully tried a condemnation bench trial over the taking of an auto dealership to allow the local transit authority to construct and operate its light rail project after having successfully defeated a motion for summary judgment to expand claimed damages by more than $10 million and precluding an award of fees or costs to the owner.
- Arbitrated multimillion-dollar construction defect dispute on behalf of hospital system resulting in successful resolution of claims.
- Obtained a verdict exactly at our client's valuation in a condemnation bench trial where the parties' valuation was more than $9 million apart and precluding an award of fees or costs to the owner.
- Represented owner client as insurance coverage counsel in trial over defective construction claims in parking garage project.
- Multi-month wage-and-hour/"joint employer" class-action bench trial resulting in a finding of no liability for client national retail chain.
- Represented national retail chain in jury trial against claims of sexual orientation discrimination, Equal Pay Act violations, and retaliation; plaintiff sought $426,000, verdict returned for $3,000.
