“To provide creative and practical solutions for complicated tax issues, I start by learning about the client’s business and goals. I strive to distill complex tax concepts into understandable bites that allow my clients to make the best decision and achieve their goals in a tax-efficient manner.”

Bryce advises clients of all sizes on the federal tax consequences of a broad range of internal and third-party transactions. In particular, he assists with the international tax planning and structuring of domestic clients’ investments and operations abroad; the cross-border merger, acquisition, disposition, and restructuring transactions of both domestic and international clients; and the structuring of foreign investment in the U.S., including under the Foreign Investment of Real Property Tax Act (FIRPTA).

Bryce also has experience with complex real estate transactions. He has counseled fund sponsors and developers with respect to the opportunity zone program; assisted clients through the completion of 1031 and 1033 exchanges; and helped developers complete low-income housing tax credit transactions.

Prior to joining the firm, Bryce was an international tax associate at KPMG, where he focused on international tax consulting and compliance for Fortune 500 companies and high net-worth individuals with international holdings. He is a frequent speaker on a variety of federal income tax topics at various bar association and client-facing industry events and other CLE programs.
