“I strive to provide responsive, creative legal advice, and counsel. By carefully evaluating the unique challenges faced by clients, I am able to effectively troubleshoot and help solve problems in a timely manner.”

Jack Wallan is an associate on the firm’s environmental and natural resources practice team. Jack began at Miller Nash as a summer associate in 2022 where he supported the environmental team with legal research, project support, and drafting materials such as memoranda.

In law school, Jack served as the Executive Editor for Professional Articles for the Review of Banking and Financial Law. He also was a judicial intern at the Orange County Superior Court in California. As an intern, Jack researched and composed memoranda on various topics and he presented oral reports on parties’ arguments and novel legal issues.
