“I enjoy learning about my clients’ businesses and providing custom legal advice to help grow the companies that hey have spent a lifetime creating. I help my clients accomplish big things, such as constructing buildings, feeding the community, fabricating products, and delivering important services that are highly valued by their customers.”

Kyle Sciuchetti is a partner on the firm’s construction practice team. With more than 25 years of experience, Kyle focuses his practice on construction law and business litigation, as well as dispute resolution, lien foreclosures, and contract and lease negotiations. Kyle regularly advises businesses and manages the legal needs of companies ranging from construction contractors to hotel management companies. He represents clients in all levels of state and federal court in Washington, Oregon, and Idaho.

Before private practice, Kyle served as the senior in-house counsel for the Public Power Council; assistant city attorney/prosecutor for the City of Spokane, Washington; and drafted legislation for the Washington State Legislature.
