“Effective advocates focus relentlessly on the details without losing sight of the bigger picture. I work closely with my clients to understand their goals and develop and execute customized strategies to navigate and resolve disputes through a cost-effective, pragmatic, and creative approach.”

Ian Christy is a commercial litigator who helps clients resolve some of their most important, high-stakes disputes. He has served as lead trial counsel in multiple cases in Oregon courts and has successfully tried multimillion dollar cases to verdict. He has more than 15 years of experience representing clients in federal and state courts and arbitration proceedings across the U.S.

Ian’s experience includes a wide variety of complex business disputes, including matters involving securities, real estate, corporate governance, and admiralty and maritime issues. He also has experience with investigations conducted by regulatory bodies, including the Securities & Exchange Commission and the U.S. Department of Justice.

Ian is a trusted adviser to firms and individuals in claims related to broker-dealer disputes, breach of fiduciary duty, securities fraud, and class-action lawsuits. He is particularly adept with handling claims under the 1933 and 1934 Securities Acts, as well as issues under the Oregon Securities Law. Ian’s keen skills in case management and case strategy stem from his background representing both claimants and defendants in various complex, multijurisdictional, and multiparty cases. Ian’s clients have included shareholders, investment advisors, broker-dealers, mutual fund companies, and hedge funds. Ian has also represented public corporations and corporate directors in securities actions.

In his admiralty and maritime practice, Ian has experience with litigation involving vessel attachments and arrests, personal injury and Jones Act claims, and maritime contract disputes.

Ian maintains an active pro bono practice, representing clients through a partnership with Legal Aid Services of Oregon.
