“My approach is centered on understanding each client’s unique needs and objectives from the outset. Litigation unfolds like a narrative, so in finding the most compelling story to tell I take care to focus my attention on the details, internalize the nuances, and strategize around my clients’ goals. In doing so, I can better ensure that our strategies are tailored to maximize our strengths while adhering to the joint principles of efficiency and efficacy.”

Tom Lloyd has extensive experience in commercial litigation in a variety of practice areas, including banking, business, real estate, employment, and contractor disputes. Tom has successfully served as lead trial counsel for the majority of his trials in state and federal courts, but also regularly represents clients in other capacities, such as local counsel, litigation management, and tactical advisor. Tom regularly practices in Idaho state and federal courts, and has appeared in courts in Washington, Oregon, California, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The breadth of Tom’s litigation practice ranges from individual clients to multinational corporations, in varied industries including banking and financial services, real estate development, telecommunications, environmental, and manufacturing. Tom prioritizes offering his clients personalized, high-quality legal advice tailored to their unique needs and eagerly approaches the new (and sometimes obscure) challenges that his clients’ individual situations present.

Prior to joining Miller Nash, Tom has worked for over 15 years in the Boise area as a commercial litigator, successfully guiding clients through prelitigation, mediation, arbitration, litigation, and appeal.

Personal Activities

Outside of his legal practice, Tom is an active community supporter, contributing to initiatives aimed at enhancing Boise's livability and providing opportunities for the education and development of Idaho's youth. A lifelong runner, he can often be found seeking clarity through the agony of miles under his feet on Boise's greenbelt and trails. Tom's love for the outdoors is at home in Idaho's wilderness, where he explores the state's natural wonders with his family and dogs. Mostly, he's a devoted father, always on the sidelines and in the stands enthusiastically cheering for his children in their various academic and sporting exploits.
