“I value developing and maintaining collaborative relationships with clients to help them achieve their business objectives. Through clear communication and dynamic problem solving, I provide practical advice and exceptional legal service.”

Elena Thompson focuses her practice on complex commercial litigation with a particular emphasis on eminent domain and condemnation. Clients benefit from her ability to effectively strategize and navigate nuances of eminent domain law and its impact on some of the region’s largest and most complex disputes.

Elena represents municipal agencies and property owners from pre-project planning through negotiations, litigation, trials, and appeals. Her ability to understand overall objectives, processes, timelines, and budgets ensures that clients receive knowledgeable, proactive, and informed advice and counsel. She is frequently invited to speak on best practices, trends, and other topics related to eminent domain and condemnation.

Elena also negotiates contracts and provides risk management strategies to public and private organizations including those in transit, real estate, and highly regulated industries.

Elena serves on the firm’s pro bono committee and uses her experience to support pro bono clients, including cases managed in partnership with the ACLU of Washington and the ACLU of Louisiana. She also co-leads Miller Nash’s team that participates in the Legal Foundation of Washington’s Associates Campaign for Equal Justice. The team works to expand access to critical legal services for families experiencing poverty.
