“Clients appreciate strategic and comprehensive insight into their needs and take notice when their concerns are heard. Therefore, I prioritize evaluating the immediate concerns of clients in relation to their long-term goals to focus my course of action effectively and efficiently.”

J. Dino Vasquez is a highly respected commercial lawyer with more than 35 years of experience advising business and institutional clients on international trade law, including export controls, trade policy, customs and import regulations and foreign investment approval from the Committee on Foreign Investment in the United States (CFIUS). He works regularly with government agencies that regulate international trade and appears in state, federal, administrative courts, and U.S. government agencies representing their interests. He advises clients in complex commercial transactions and disputes at local, national, and international levels, focusing on the rights and obligations of parties involved in commercial transactions and trade matters. With a proven track record, Dino offers unique experience in navigating the intricacies of commercial law across diverse legal landscapes.

Dino provides strategic counsel to clients on regulatory compliance related to import/export laws, trade statutes, and international treaties. He advises aerospace companies, civil and military manufacturers, and global service providers on navigating complex regulatory frameworks. In addition to his regulatory focus, Dino represents carriers, freight forwarders, importers, and exporters in litigation involving maritime and domestic transportation disputes, including cargo and bill of lading issues, property and vessel damage claims, and warehousing disputes. He is adept at negotiating with key government agencies, including the U.S. State Department’s Office of Defense Trade Controls, the Department of Commerce’s Bureau of Industry and Security, the Department of Justice, the Department of Homeland Security, and U.S. Customs Enforcement. Dino’s extensive litigation experience includes cases before the Court of International Trade and representation in international arbitration and mediation proceedings.
